

Learning Disability Work Experience Week 7-11 Nov 2016

Is your business missing out?

When you hire people with a learning disability, you reap the rewards.

People with a learning disability...

- Stay in jobs for longer, meaning you save time and money on recruitment
- Take fewer sick days
- Make up some of the most loyal employees in the workforce
- Are often ideal new recruits for your entry level positions

And did you know...

On average, 20% of a business' customers have a disability, by hiring someone with a learning disability you gain a valuable insight into the lives and needs of this huge section of your customer base.

By hiring people with a learning disability, you show that you are an inclusive employer, as all employers should be.

Don't let talent go untapped – get people with a learning disability on your team.
